2005-2006 Annual Report

Celebration at the James J. and Angelia M. Harris Corporate Training and Conference Center dedication
Central Piedmont Community College has a long-standing history of educational excellence in this community. Since our College’s birth in 1963, we’ve been offering programs to meet the demands of the workforce. Today, I am proud to say that CPCC offers 100 degree, diploma, and certification programs; customized corporate training; market-focused continuing education; and special interest classes designed to meet the workforce needs of this community. We serve more than 70,000 people on our six campuses across the county, and our online courses are growing every year. Thanks to the support of voters in our construction bond referendums and the support of generous donors to our Creating Opportunities campaign, CPCC is able to provide training opportunities for those who need them.

CPCC has been recognized nationally as a leader in workforce development. CPCC programs and services provide citizens with new career opportunities and the chance to advance their skills. Our college transfer programs offer the first two years of education for those who wish to continue their education at a four-year college or university. We provide high quality, accessible, and affordable education in an accountable manner. As an open-door college, we widen the winners’ circle every day for our students.

CPCC has some of the best instructors in the country. Our more than 2,100 faculty and staff members truly care about the students at CPCC and work hard to help them become successful. Our staff members have won numerous local, regional, and national awards.

In this annual report, you’ll get a glimpse into the valuable offerings we have at CPCC. This report highlights a few of our most prestigious awards, honors, and accomplishments over the past year.

CPCC has opportunities for everyone. No matter where you’re going, CPCC helps you Get There.

Sincerely,

P. Anthony Zeiss, Ed.D.
President

North Carolina Governor Mike Easley has appointed two new members to the CPCC Board of Trustees:

Robert (Bob) L. Reid, II serves as President of the Retirement and Investments Group with Wachovia Corporation. In this position, he coordinates Wachovia’s retirement strategy across the General Bank, Capital Management, Wealth Management, and Corporate and Investment Banking lines of business.

Reid joined Wachovia in 1978 and has served as CEO of First Union Pennsylvania/Delaware; CEO of First Union-Atlantic; Executive Vice President and head of the General Banking Group at First Union-Atlantic, as well as other positions.

He received a B.A. in business administration from Wake Forest University and has served as a past Board member of Pennsylvania Business Roundtable. He serves on the Board of Visitors for Wake Forest University, Calloway School of Business and Accountancy, and on the Board of Habitat for Humanity of Charlotte. He also has been active in fundraising for United Way and First Tee of Charlotte.

Patricia A. Rodgers serves as President and CEO of Rodgers Builders, Inc; a Charlotte-based general contracting firm that has grown into one of the top 400 construction companies in the United States.

Rodgers has served as immediate past Chair of The Mint Museums. Currently, she serves as Vice Chairman of the Board of the Carolinas Chapter of The Associated General Contractors of America, is a member of the Board of Trustees of Davidson College, and serves on the Charlotte Symphony Board of Directors. In 2005, Rodgers was named Business Person of the Year by the Charlotte Business Journal.
Central Piedmont Community College is about turning dreams into reality. For more than 40 years, CPCC has provided life changing opportunities for its students while serving as an economic engine for this community.

Since its founding, CPCC has served more than 1.4 million citizens in Mecklenburg County, and today is the largest college in the Carolinas. By the year 2015, at its current rate of growth, CPCC will serve more than 105,000 students annually. The dedication and commitment of CPCC’s instructors and administrators, coupled with top-notch programs and services, make the College one of this community’s most valuable resources.

CPCC is also responsive to the needs of this community. CPCC meets regularly with the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, Charlotte Center City Partners, business and industry program advisory committees, and individual business leaders to ensure that the College is offering the programs and training that are needed for the workplace today and tomorrow.

As Chairman of CPCC’s Board of Trustees, I know the far-reaching impact of this institution. Whether it’s through CPCC’s Corporate and Continuing Education program, a two-year Associate degree program, a joint venture partnership in simulation and game development, involvement in the College’s new Lifetime Learning Institute, or participation in the Adult Basic Education program, CPCC is touching lives every day. Simply put, CPCC is accessible, affordable, and highly respected.

The success of CPCC would not be possible without the support of this community. From the passing of construction bonds to support for the College’s annual campaign, the total community continues to be engaged in the work of CPCC.

Mecklenburg County is extremely fortunate to have a community college of this caliber in our area. It is an honor and a privilege to serve as Chairman of this Board of Trustees.

Ralph A. Pitts
Chairman, Board of Trustees

What Do Our Customers Say About Us?

Each year, the North Carolina Community College System surveys students, businesses, and the community to measure the success of community colleges throughout the state. These performance measures allow colleges to evaluate success and areas for improvement. At right are some highlights from the 2005–2006 state accountability measures for CPCC.

- 99.5% of CPCC students are employed within one year after graduation.
- 96% of students are satisfied with the overall quality of academic programs at CPCC.
- 98% of students said they met their goal in attending CPCC.
- 97% of employers are satisfied with the preparation of CPCC graduates to enter the workforce.
- 100% of businesses are satisfied with the customized training they received from CPCC.

CPCC Student Profile

Matt Long, Student Government Association (SGA) President and CPCC Welding Student

Matt Long, a 2002 graduate of Northwest School of the Arts, first started his higher education at a four-year institution. After he had difficulty finding a job, he decided to come to CPCC and learn some of the skills he needed for employment. Matt states, “I knew that it was important to gain the skills I needed to pursue a career in welding. CPCC is giving me the knowledge, skills, and abilities I need to be successful in this field.”

Matt credits the dedicated instructors and the quality of instruction he’s receiving for his success at CPCC. Today, Matt serves as President of the Student Government Association (SGA) at CPCC. “This College offers one-on-one attention and lots of leadership and community service opportunities,” Matt explains.

According to Matt, “CPCC is an excellent value. You get to experience higher education at a fraction of the cost. CPCC is certainly the best buy for the dollar.”

Economic Impact of CPCC on the Community

Central Piedmont Community College continues to be a driving force in this region’s economy. The goals of the College are to be financially accessible to the community and to provide a strong return on investment. As an open-door institution of higher education, CPCC offers many benefits to the community:

• Students benefit from higher earnings as a result of higher education and training.
• The community benefits from social cost savings, including reduced unemployment, welfare costs, and incarcerations.
• The community benefits from a unique blend of economic opportunities and other outcomes having a strong impact on increased earnings and productivity.
Cato Family Receives Distinguished Service Award from CPCC

Wayland H. Cato, Jr. and Marion Cato Honored for Generous Support

Central Piedmont Community College presented the College’s Distinguished Service Award to Marion and Wayland H. Cato, Jr. on Thursday, May 11, 2006 at the College’s commencement exercises. This award is annually presented by CPCC to an individual who has provided strong support to the institution over the past year. On May 19, 2005, CPCC honored Wayland H. Cato, Jr. by naming the Northeast Campus on Grier Road and W.T. Harris Boulevard in his honor. Wayland H. Cato, Jr. and Marion Cato, his wife, have been strong supporters of CPCC over the years.

Cato is the retired president, CEO, and chairman of The Cato Corporation. Born in Edgefield, South Carolina, he graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a degree in commerce and then served as a Navy officer for two years. He joined his father and brother, Edgar, in Charlotte where they founded The Cato Corporation, which has grown into one of the nation’s largest chain of women’s clothing stores with more than 1,200 stores in 31 states.

“Wayland H. Cato, Jr. and Marion have long been supporters of our institution and the work we do,” states Dr. Tony Zeiss, President of Central Piedmont Community College. “I am pleased to be able to honor them with the Distinguished Service Award from the College. This recognition is the College’s top honor for service and commitment to CPCC.”

The Richard H. Hagemeyer Educational Advancement Award
Honor Alumnus Richard Zollinger

Ask CPCC graduate Richard Zollinger what the College means to him and you’ll probably hear the words, “life changing.” Zollinger, a native of Switzerland, has experienced first-hand how this community college opens doors and improves lives. As a result of Zollinger’s commitment to give back to the community and use his educational experiences, he received the Richard H. Hagemeyer Educational Advancement Award at CPCC’s graduation ceremonies on May 11, 2006.

Zollinger was involved in studies at CPCC from 1981–1983. After serving in the Swiss military following high school graduation, Zollinger traveled to Charlotte to enroll in the American English School. After hearing about CPCC, he enrolled in the English as a Second Language Program (ESL) and then entered in the college transfer program. Zollinger went on to earn a B.A. in psychology and a M.A. degree in industrial organizational psychology at East Carolina University. Currently, he is pursuing his doctorate in higher education through NOVA Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Zollinger now serves as the Associate Vice President for Instruction at CPCC. Prior to this position, he served as Dean of CPCC’s Levine Campus, Associate Dean of the Evening Campus and Special Programs, and Coordinator/Instruction of the International Business Center at CPCC. Zollinger has also served on the Mayor’s International Cabinet, participated in the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce Leadership Program, Charlotte World Trade Association, Charlotte Community Relations Association. He has been active at Carmel Presbyterian Church and in the Swiss Society of Charlotte.

“CPCC has not only helped me with my English, my remedial education, and my preparation for succeeding at a university, but it has also given me a wonderful place to work,” states Zollinger. “My work at the College is allowing me to impact individuals who have the same need that I had in 1981 and is giving me an opportunity to give back to a community that has helped me so much.”

The Hagemeyer Award is named for Dr. Richard H. Hagemeyer, CPCC’s founding President and President Emeritus. The award is presented to a current or former CPCC student who demonstrates significant benefit from studies at CPCC by:
• Demonstrating community involvement and social responsibility
• Acquiring scholastic and learning skills that have led to continued personal and educational growth
• Improving his or her economic status and potential for growth
• Exemplifying positive and significant life changes

Past recipients of the award include: Frances Queen; Chief Luther Fincher; Dr. Kenny Welch; Joseph A. Weatherford; James White; Paul G. Griffin; Dr. Margaret Stanley Hagan; Sheriff James Pendergraph; Ronald Caldwell; Gary Mims; Elaine M. Lyerly; Donna Kay Hager Bracey, DDS, George R. Dunlap, Kim Morgan Greene, William M. Maples, Harold Walker, James W. Bogan, George M. Blakely, Thelma D. Freeze, Clifton H. Hammond, Samuel H. Killman, Phillip L. Gaddy, Stephanie Webster Harris, Les J. Reid, John H. White, Cynthia Young Hutchins, Steve Stillwell, Henrietta S. Humphries, Dona Patterson, Robert T. Knox, James A. Leventis, M.D., Gregory Davis, Maurice D. Ewing, and Bessie B. Weldon.

Dear Friends:

On behalf of the Central Piedmont Community College Foundation, please accept my deepest thanks for your support. Because of your generosity, the College has set new standards in fundraising. In 2005–06, we received 2,010 gifts and pledges totaling $8,712,912. This was by far the most successful fundraising year in the College’s history. Thank you for your role in helping us reach this mark.

This record fundraising year has propelled the College’s ongoing campaign well beyond its goal. Entitled Creating Opportunities, this campaign began some five years ago with what seemed to be a daunting goal of $15 million. It is my great pleasure to let you know that, as of June 30, 2006, campaign commitments totaled $23,333,786. The campaign will end on December 31, 2006.

The great success we have realized and continue to realize would not be possible without your support. Your gifts enable Central Piedmont Community College to provide the citizens of Charlotte-Mecklenburg with the finest educational and career training opportunities. We are truly grateful.

Again, many thanks for your generous support of Central Piedmont Community College.

Sincerely,

Thomas E. Norman
President, Board of Directors
Central Piedmont Community College Foundation

Gallery Honors Ross

On November 18, 2005, the Elizabeth Sproul Ross Gallery was dedicated to honor Elizabeth Ross, a teacher in CPCC’s Visual Arts Program for 37 years. The event was attended by more than 400 guests of the College. The naming of the gallery was an initiative led by Elizabeth’s friends, family, colleagues, and students.

One hundred ninety-three individuals made gifts to name the gallery in her honor.
Gift Names Tate Hall

Allen Tate has made a generous commitment to Central Piedmont Community College to name Tate Hall in the Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center. His gift will create an endowment to maintain and equip Tate Hall and to assist in meeting the costs of musical productions and other cultural events to take place in the facility. Tate Hall will host venues for groups up to 150 people. This gift honors Mr. Tate’s late wife, Barbara.

Academic and Performing Arts Center Named for Overcash Family

The College dedicated the Christa and Reece A. Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center in a ceremony on May 4, 2006. The 130,000-square-foot building is the new “front door” to CPCC’s Central Campus. The Overcash Center is located at Elizabeth Avenue and Kings Drive and is home to student services offices, classrooms, the Dale F. Halton Theater, the Elizabeth Sproull Ross Gallery, Tate Hall, and other performing and visual arts programs.

Christa Overcash is a member of the CPCC Foundation Board of Directors, and she and her late husband, Reece, have been longtime contributors to the College. Christa made this generous gift on behalf of her family. Her gift will provide funding for the operation of the Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center, need-based scholarships and books for students, and the Christa A. Overcash Nursing Program, which she named in October 2000 with a previous gift.
Halton Theater Dedicated

More than 600 guests of the College celebrated the dedication of the Dale F. Halton Theater on November 10, 2005. Dale Halton is the recently retired President and CEO of Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Charlotte. The theater bears her name in recognition of her strong support for the arts and a generous contribution to CPCC from the Dale F. Halton Foundation.

The 1,020-seat Halton Theater is the centerpiece of the Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center. It is home to the College’s performing arts programs, including Summer Theatre and Opera Theatre and serves as a venue for regional and national touring companies and performers.
On August 19, 2005, CPCC formally dedicated the James J. and Angelia M. Harris Corporate Training and Conference Center. The dedication ceremony honored a generous grant from the Harris Foundation in support of the new building. The Harris Center is Charlotte’s only facility built with the express purpose of meeting the conference needs of the business community. Since opening, it has hosted more than 10,000 conference participants.

Speaking on behalf of the Harris Foundation and family, Cameron Harris—chair of the Harris Foundation board at the time and a director of the CPCC Foundation—said: “I know first-hand of the opportunities that are provided by the College to over 70,000 people every year. By supporting CPCC, the Harris Foundation contributes to the betterment of our community and the lives of its citizens.”
Queen’s Table Commissions Aspire Sculpture

Aspire, a 12,000-pound bronze sculpture, was dedicated on December 7, 2005. It was commissioned by the Queen’s Table, a group formed 20 years ago to donate public art to Charlotte-Mecklenburg. Suzanne Botts chaired the project for the Queen’s Table. Nationally-known artist Greg Wyatt created the sculpture. Aspire stands in front of the College’s Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center at the edge of uptown Charlotte.

The CPCC Student Government Association donated the walkways, lighting, landscape and benches surrounding Aspire.

Artist Recognized for Public Artwork

At a ceremony on August 19, 2005, artist Stanton Spears was recognized for the creation of a public artwork named Reflect/Reflect located on CPCC’s West Campus off Morris Field Drive. The piece was commissioned by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Arts and Science Council in conjunction with the College. The artwork is adjacent to the James J. and Angelia M. Harris Corporate Training and Conference Center.
CPCC’s Creating Opportunities Campaign Surpasses Goal

On October 20, 2004, the College publicly embarked on a campaign entitled Creating Opportunities to raise $15 million. It is the most ambitious fundraising effort in CPCC’s history. As of June 30, 2006, the campaign had reached $23,333,786.

The purpose of the campaign is to raise funds for scholarships, instructional programs, faculty support, annual support, and special opportunities. The campaign will conclude December 31, 2006.

We are grateful to the Charlotte community for embracing this campaign and giving so generously.

B. F. (Bev) Dolan Honored by Crutchfields

Former First Union Chairman Edward (Ed) Crutchfield and his wife, Barbara, have provided funding to support the B. F. (Bev) Dolan Scholarship at Central Piedmont Community College. This gift was made through the Crutchfield Family Foundation for independent students with financial need, two years removed from high school, and enrolled in a degree program at the College.

Mr. Dolan retired as Chairman of Textron, Inc. in December 1992. He is a retired director of First Union; Ruddick Corporations; FPL Group, Inc.; and Polaris Industries.

In making this gift, the Crutchfields noted that Mr. Dolan has always demonstrated in his life a deeply felt interest in other people. His wise counsel and advice have benefited countless people. This gift will continue his impact years into the future.

CPCC Family Campaign

The CPCC “Family Campaign” is the faculty and staff component of Creating Opportunities. Nearly 700 members of our College family have donated $664,890. The following campuses boasted 100% participation:

- Cato Campus
- Central Campus Administration
- City View Center
- West Campus

Our sincere appreciation to faculty and staff for their generous show of support.

CPCC Dedicates Jaffa Printmaking Studio

CPCC dedicated the Florence and Ben Jaffa, Jr. Printmaking Studio on April 30, 2006. The naming of the studio recognizes Mrs. Jaffa’s generous support for printmaking instruction at the College. Mrs. Jaffa has been an ongoing student in the College’s Visual Arts Program and is an accomplished painter and printmaker.
CPCC Legacy Society Welcomes New Members

Legacy Society members have named the College as a recipient of a planned gift, described as any deferred or current gift that requires a donor to consider his or her tax and financial situation along with philanthropic intent. Gifts include cash, securities, real property, life insurance, bequests, annuities, trusts, and retirement plans.

There are many worthy charitable causes and institutions that need support. Central Piedmont Community College is especially thankful to have been chosen as a recipient for these donors’ planned giving. Through their support, they assure the future of the College as a vital resource for Charlotte-Mecklenburg far into the future.

For more information on how to become a member of the CPCC Legacy Society, please contact Brenda Lea at 704.330.6869 or brenda.lea@cpcc.edu.

Central High Legacy Garden Created

On June 17, 2006, donors to the Central High School Legacy Fund gathered to dedicate the Central High Legacy Garden, complete with the emblematic willow tree and a donor plaque commemorating over 1,000 CHS alumni who have given to the fund. Nearly $300,000 was raised to provide scholarships for CPCC students, create the Legacy Garden, and help maintain the old Central High School building located on Elizabeth Avenue on CPCC’s Central Campus.

It is with sincere appreciation that CPCC recognizes all of the Central High School Legacy Fund donors.
Paralegal Scholarship Established by Judy and Jim Allison

The Judith N. and James W. Allison Scholarship supports full-time students enrolled in CPCC’s Paralegal Technology Program. The scholarship was established this year by CPCC Foundation Board member Judy Allison and her husband, Jim, of the law firm Johnston Allison & Hord. Awards are based on both academic achievement and financial need. Some 60 students graduate from the College’s Paralegal Program each year.

In explaining why they created the scholarship, Jim said: “Paralegals are critically important to the successful operation of a law firm. CPCC provides a quality paralegal education program and thoroughly prepares paralegals to succeed in their profession. Judy and I are proud to sponsor a scholarship fund to support such an outstanding program.”

On her service and support of the College, Judy commented: “CPCC has a tremendous impact on our community and serves a vital role in educating our citizens. I’m committed to its mission and honored to serve on the CPCC Foundation’s Board.”

Powell Majors Honored

The R. Powell Majors Bookstore, relocated to the College’s Professional Development Building on Central Campus, was dedicated on October 18, 2005. The Majors Bookstore honors Mr. Majors and recognizes his support of Central Piedmont Community College, his service as Executive Director of the CPCC Foundation 1971–1990, and his commitment to education in Charlotte-Mecklenburg.

In addition, the Charlotte Rotary Club and the CPCC Foundation together launched a Powell Majors Scholarship Endowment Fund in the spring of 2006 to acknowledge Powell’s 100th birthday on December 12, 2006. Friends who would like to make a contribution may send a gift to: Majors Scholarship, CPCC Foundation, PO Box 35009, Charlotte, NC 28235 or call 704.330.6869.
Montagnards or “Mountain People” refers to the name given to indigenous tribes of the central highlands of Vietnam. They fought alongside U.S. Special Forces during the Vietnam War, and many Montagnards have come to this country since the war’s end. Carl Regan, a former Green Beret, and his wife, Jeanne, have established a Save the Montagnard Scholarship Fund at CPCC and a number of other colleges. By doing so, they seek to repay the Montagnards for their support of U.S. troops. The scholarship provides full tuition for full-and part-time Montagnard students.

Commenting on their relationship with CPCC, Jeanne Regan said: “Thank you for the outstanding job you are doing in assisting us in providing our Montagnard friends the greatest gift of all—education.” CPCC is privileged to be of assistance; the “thank you” goes to the Regans for their phenomenal concern and generosity.

Cato and Lea Receive Awards

Congratulations to Wayland Cato, Jr. and to Brenda Lea for receiving well-deserved awards at the Charlotte Chapter - Association of Fundraising Professionals’ annual Philanthropy Day Awards Luncheon on November 1, 2005.

Mr. Cato, for whom Central Piedmont Community College’s Cato Campus was dedicated in 2005, was named “Outstanding Philanthropist.” Ms. Lea, Executive Director of Development, CPCC Foundation, was named “Outstanding Professional Fundraising Executive.”

Time Warner Cable Gift Supports Students and Services

In the spring of 2006, Time Warner Cable of Charlotte made a generous commitment to provide services, equipment, and financial support to CPCC. In return for this commitment, the student commons area of the Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center will be named for Time Warner Cable.

Time Warner President Mike Munley said, “We are proud to be investing not only in Central Piedmont Community College, but in our future. By providing our technology to the College, we are taking an active role in assisting and supporting tomorrow’s leaders.”

In 2005, Suzanne L. Botts established the Crist Scholarship Endowment in memory of her late husband, Jack Crist. Annual earnings will provide tuition, books, and fees to deserving students. To qualify, students must demonstrate potential for success based on a record of academic achievement, work experience, and/or community service.

Mrs. Botts said, “After working with Central Piedmont on the Queen’s Table project, I saw what a fabulous community college we have in our city. I just believe in what CPCC is doing and want to help students at the College with their future.”

In 2006, Suzanne L. Botts established the Crist Scholarship Endowment in memory of her late husband, Jack Crist. Annual earnings will provide tuition, books, and fees to deserving students. To qualify, students must demonstrate potential for success based on a record of academic achievement, work experience, and/or community service.

Matching Gifts

Madelyn Caple, CPCC Foundation Board member, doubled her gift to the College this year. She is Regional Director, Wealth Management, Wachovia Bank, and the Bank matched her gift 100%. Madelyn said, “Many companies have matching gifts programs, and donors should always check with their employer for this opportunity. It’s an excellent way to increase support for colleges and other nonprofit organizations.”

A list of all companies that matched gifts to the CPCC Foundation in 2006 is listed to the right:

CPCC Student Profile

Rebka Gada, Physical Therapy Student

When Rebka Gada graduated from Independence High School in 2005 she knew that she wanted to further her education. She also knew she wanted to attend a school that was convenient and close to home. That’s why she chose CPCC. Today, she has experienced firsthand more than just the benefit of convenience at CPCC.

“At CPCC, I was introduced to instructors and counselors who truly care,” explains Rebka. “They helped me find the perfect career path and introduced me to a wealth of resources at the College.”

Rebka is pursuing an Associate’s degree in physical therapy and plans to transfer to the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. “The instructors and counselors at CPCC took time for me and made me feel special. The quality of instruction and the variety of courses at CPCC really can’t be beat.”

Gilda Rubio-Festa,
CPCC Director of International Outreach

Since 1998, Gilda Rubio-Festa has served in various capacities in the English as a Second Language (ESL) program at CPCC. Currently, she serves as Director of International Outreach and is instrumental in developing strategic plans for increasing educational opportunities for the rapidly growing international community. She develops educational programming which recognizes and is sensitive to the cultural and linguistic diversity in the Charlotte region. Gilda has directed and developed ESL program initiatives with a focus on workforce development and distance learning that have been nationally recognized.

This year, Gilda was named the Southern regional winner for the Faculty Member of the Year Award by the Association of Community College Trustees. She was also appointed to the Governor’s Advisory Council on Hispanic/Latino Affairs.

Gilda has provided strong leadership in the College’s effort to transition multicultural/multilingual students into the College and the community. Some of the various projects initiated by Gilda’s team include the following:

- Career Ladders program for English Language Learners, which provides job training to enter the Charlotte workforce. The step-by-step program prepares multilingual learners to succeed in postsecondary education and training that can lead to entry-level positions in high-demand industries.

- Civic Engagement program, which offers students a series of short multimedia workshops that provides them with access to civic information, training opportunities, and general cultural information.

- Partnership with Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools (CMS) – the College-to-Career program is a five-week career exploration and skills preparation course that targets Spanish-speaking CMS graduates who need extra support before entering postsecondary education.

“We are extremely proud of Gilda Rubio-Festa and her contributions to the College,” states Dr. Tony Zeiss, President of Central Piedmont Community College. “Gilda is a highly motivated and dedicated faculty member who is extremely passionate about the work she does. As a result of her innovative ideas and her passion for her work, the ESL program at CPCC has become a national model.”
CPCC Loses Friend and Supporter

We mourn the passing of Edward “Ed” O’Herron, Jr. He and his wife, Margaret “Dosty” O’Herron, established the first Faculty Endowment at CPCC in 1993 to honor excellence in teaching.

A distinguished North Carolina State legislator during the 1950s, Mr. O’Herron introduced the first legislation to found North Carolina community colleges.

Mr. O’Herron was the father of Patty Norman, co-chair of the College’s Creating Opportunities campaign, and father-in-law of campaign co-chair and Foundation Board President Tommy Norman.

Memorial and honor gifts allow donors to remember family and friends important to us. Some CPCC friends make a provision in their will for gifts to be made to the College at their death, or their families make the request. Others receive gifts in their honor while they are living—for their birthdays, anniversaries or even Christmas.
